Broadcasting Music. By ERNEST LA PRADE. Rinehart. Pp. 236. $2.50.

Describes the entire process of broadcasting music from the planning of programs to their production in the studio.

Play Production for Little Theaters, Schools and Colleges. By MILTON SMITH. Illustrated by WILLIAM STEINEL. Appleton-Century. Pp. 482. $4.50.

A discussion of all the different elements of theater practice which must be unified if a good production is to be achieved. Divided into four main sections: "The Theater and the Script"; "Directing and Acting"; "Stagecraft and Design"; "Organization and Management."

Bread upon Waters: A Memoir of Sarah A. Putnam. Compiled by ALUMNI and TEACHERS OF PARK SCHOOL. Baltimore, Md. Pp. 206.

A little volume which in many ways should be more useful to young teachers than a book on pedagogy. Miss Putnam, it appears, was a teacher of the art of living through English. The first half of the book contains things she wrote—letters, comments on themes, reports—all of which show her desire that every child have kinship with our language and literature; the second contains the work of her pupils and shows both her methods and their results.

FOR THE STUDENT

Working Up a Part: A Manual for the Beginning Actor. By H. D. ALBRIGHT. Houghton. Pp. 224. $2.50.

A handbook for use in classes in acting. Shows how to work up a part from analysis of the role, through rehearsal to performance. Comprehensive and useful exercises at end of each chapter.

Radio News Writing and Editing. By CARL WARREN. Harpers. Pp. 439. $4.00.

A manual which presents the technique of handling radio news, prepared by a veteran broadcast editor and college teacher.

A History of Modern Drama. Edited by BARRETT H. CLARK and GEORGE FREEDLEY. Appleton-Century. Pp. 832. $5.00.

Outlines on a broad basis the origin and development of modern drama, taking Ibsen as a starter and covering all countries and language groups which have been influenced by the history and traditions of European civilization. More than twenty persons specializing in various fields of dramatic knowledge have contributed to the volume.

Newspaper Designing. By JOHN E. ALLEN. Harper. Pp. 478. $6.00.

An authoritative reference book for every newspaperman, from journalism student to veteran reporter. The first part describes the historic background and past development of newspapers and the fundamentals of sound newspaper design; the second interprets recent trends and achievements of news presentation. Illustrated with more than two hundred and fifty examples of type faces, heads, layouts, and designs.
